PROTECTION

When & How You Need It

Everybody is different and there isn't a one-size-fits-all life insurance policy to protect and provide for your family. But GPM Life's universal life insurance product was designed so that you can create the policy that fits you and your family's specific needs. Flexible options allow you to consider:

- Adjustable premiums¹
- Specified Face Amounts that can be increased or decreased²
- Access to cash values
- Optional Riders³ (see below)
- Living benefit rider is included for no additional premium⁴

RIDERS

What do they provide?

ADDITIONAL COVERAGE for children and other eligible persons

ADDITIONAL BENEFIT in the event death occurs due to an accident³

An Opportunity to INCREASE COVERAGE at specified times

A WAIVER OF the COST to keep the insurance coverage in force if the insured is disabled

DECREASING BENEFIT to closely follow the amortization of a loan, such as a mortgage

¹ Subject to minimums and maximums required by law.

² Increase subject to underwriting, both increases and decreases are subject to policy provisions

³ Riders are subject to issue state availability and rider provisions.

Life Examples

Covering a Mortgage¹

The Watsons

Bonnie and Paul Watson purchased the house of their dreams when their children started school. Shortly thereafter, both bought a Universal Life insurance policy with a Decreasing Mortgage Rider to closely match the payoff amount of their mortgage loan. Money was tight and the Watsons needed to be efficient in their budgeting. Three years later, Paul died unexpectedly. Bonnie used the insurance proceeds to pay the mortgage loan and stay in the family home.

A Diagnosis of a Stroke¹

Edith

She was a great teacher, popular with students, parents and administrators. When a stroke began to rob her of the ability to care for herself, family and friends struggled to see how they could pay for the care of this beloved educator. But Edith's family remembered the Critical Illness provision of the Accelerated Death Benefit Rider in her life insurance policy. Her family was able to accelerate a portion of the death benefit to help with her daily care.

An Unexpected Terminal Illness¹

Phil

Phil's family was devastated when he was diagnosed with stage 4 melanoma and was told he had less than 24 months to live. An avid outdoors man and athlete, the illness was unexpected. Phil knew he had more than enough other life insurance coverage for needs after his death, so he chose to request the benefit under the Terminal Illness provision of his Accelerated Death Benefit Rider from his GPM Life policy. The Benefit paid afforded Phil the ability to spend quality time with his family at the end of his life.

¹ This event is a hypothetical situation. Actual benefits will be based on the policy and premium selected, as well as the events triggering the use of the Living Benefit (Accelerated Death Benefit Rider). The illustrated results are not indicative of any particular situation, and your results will likely differ from the results shown above.

LIVING BENEFIT Rider

How does it work?

Terminal Illness ALB (TIALB)¹

In order to be eligible for payout of the Terminal Illness Accelerated Living Benefit, (TIALB) the Insured must suffer from a bodily injury or disease which, as certified by a physician, has reduced life expectancy to less than 24 months.² After the TIALB is paid, the Policy's death benefit and premium will be reduced proportionately based on the amount of death benefit accelerated. Up to 100% percent of the death benefit, or $1,000,000 can be accelerated, whichever is less. However the benefit payment under this rider will be less than the accelerated amount.

Chronic Illness ALB (CHALB)¹

In order to be eligible for payout of the Chronic Illness Accelerated Living Benefit, the insured must have been certified in the last 12 months, by a Physician or licensed health care practitioner as, without substantial assistance from another person, not being able to perform at least two of the six activities of daily living for at least 90 days or being severely cognitively impaired for 90 consecutive days.

If the Insured has been certified chronically ill, he or she can accelerate up to 24% of the death benefit annually, up to the lifetime maximum of 100% of the death benefit or $1,000,000, whichever is less.

The amount of payment under this rider, if approved, will be a fraction of the death benefit accelerated, and will depend on such factors as nature and severity of the health condition and the change in remaining life expectancy. The smaller the change in remaining life expectancy, the lower the payment. The larger the change in life expectancy, the higher the payment. Six Activities of Daily Living:

- Bathing
- Dressing
- Toileting
- Continence
- Eating
- Transferring

Critical Illness ALB (CRALB)¹

In order to be eligible for payout of the Critical Illness Accelerated Living Benefit, the Insured must be critically ill. A critical illness is any of the following qualifying conditions:

- Heart Attack
- Stroke
- ALS (Lou Gehrig's Disease)
- Cancer
- End Stage Renal (kidney) Failure
- Blindness due to Diabetes
- Paralysis (loss of the use of two or more limbs)
- Major Organ Transplant

The policyholder can accelerate up to 100% of the death benefit or $1,000,000, whichever is less.

The amount of payment under this rider, if approved, will be a fraction of the death benefit accelerated, and will depend on such factors as nature and severity of the health condition and the change in remaining life expectancy. The smaller the change in remaining life expectancy, the lower the payment. The larger the change in life expectancy, the higher the payment.

¹ The Accelerated Death Benefit Rider has an administrative fee applied at the time of benefit payment. Subject to Rider provisions.

Frequently Asked Questions¹

Can I accelerate the death benefit more than once?

Yes² - When you take less than the full election at the time of your initial claim, you may be able to elect to receive additional accelerated benefit amounts at a later date as long as the total of the benefits does not exceed the maximum allowable amount.

If I take less than the full election on my initial claim, will the remainder still be available as a life insurance benefit in the event of my death?

Yes² - For example, if you have a $200,000 policy in force and you elect to accelerate 60% of the death benefit due to a critical or chronic illness, you still have 40% (or $80,000) of your death benefit remaining, which is payable to your beneficiary in the event of your death.

If my Accelerated Death Benefit claim is approved, will I receive a Benefit payment equal to the amount requested to be accelerated?

No – The amount of payment under this rider, if approved, will be less than the death benefit amount accelerated, and will depend on such factors as the nature and severity of the health condition and the change in your remaining life expectancy. If the change in life expectancy is small, the payment will be lower. Conversely, if your life expectancy is severely impacted, the payment will be a higher percentage of the amount accelerated.

¹ Please refer to the policy and rider forms (state specific) for complete details. The policy must be in force for the riders to be in force.
